ROUGHAN INTERIORS

For this Palm Beach pied-à-terre, Christina Roughan's Greenwich clients wanted their small but chic vacation home to be contemporary, embracing a mix of traditional and modern design as well as a functional flow and open feel. Since the dining space is small, Roughan chose white marble flooring to add warmth and make the room feel more spacious, and created a sideboard in the entry that serves a dual purpose. The inspiring ocean views led her to infuse the space with various shades of blue, most notably in a stunning photograph of the ocean by the renowned EJ Camp and a large oil painting by Italian artist Antonio Sannino. The interiors enhance the outside vista, per the clients' request, and the dining room blends effortlessly with the rest of the home while remaining unique and special. —MF

ROUGHAN INTERIORS

This living room designed by Christina Roughan is a study in serenity for a busy family of five, where beloved accessories and artwork offer gentle counterpoints of color and texture to the neutral walls and foundation pieces. The designer replaced the room's moldings to create proper sheers throughout the space, and she was also tasked with devising a cohesive seating arrangement for the split room that naturally flowed. With one piece of artwork serving as the starting point, this beautiful yet functional space is filled with decorative finds that hold special meaning for the clients. A white Klein Reid Nimbus porcelain vase and a vintage marble vase with bits of gray prove that sometimes treasured accessories—along with the measured design choices that form the backbone of this classic and contemporary jewel—don't always need to clamor for attention. Timeless design sings for itself. —NT
